

Midyear 2021: Inflation, innovation and the path forward

EXPERT PANELIST BIO: Michelle Meyer

Michelle Meyer is a managing director and head of U.S. Economics at BofA Global Research. Based in New York, she provides timely analysis of economic data and Federal Reserve policy announcements to the sales force and traders. Michelle is responsible for providing the firm's U.S. economic forecasts, including the outlook for GDP, inflation and Federal Reserve policy. Her broad research interests include macroeconomics, public policy and the housing market.

Prior to joining BofA Securities in May 2010, Michelle was a senior U.S. economist at Barclays Capital, and she started her career on the U.S. economics team at Lehman Brothers. While there, she developed a strong following for her housing outlook, warning about the risks of excess in the housing market. Then in 2012, she called the turn higher in home prices.

Michelle earned a bachelor's degree (magna cum laude) and a master's degree, both in economics, at Boston University. She and her team have been ranked among the top three economics teams by the Institutional Investor All America Fixed-Income Research Survey for the last three years. She was named on Forbes magazine's 30 Under 30 list in finance in 2011 and as a Rising Star by the Women's Forum for Economy and Society in 2012.

Michelle is co-chair of Bank of America's Women's Leadership Council and a member of the Economics Club of New York. She is a frequent commentator on news media outlets, including CNBC and Bloomberg TV, and is often cited in print and online media.
